Thomas McClay joins RedRidge as diligence firm increases New York presence

Financial diligence provider's U.S. and international growth continues apace with the appointment of Thomas McClay to the New York office as Director.

CHICAGO: In its most recent expansion move, RedRidge Diligence Services has appointed Tom McClay to its New York office as Director. Tom will be responsible for further embedding RedRidge's success with private equity groups, investment banks and corporate clients in the Northeast region by providing buy-side and sell-side financial due diligence services.

Tom has extensive experience in financial due diligence, transaction structuring, deal negotiation and post-transaction assistance, having held a number of senior roles within the financial services space. Most recently, Tom served as Director at Grant Thornton LLP where, among other responsibilities, he supervised buy and sell-side financial due diligence.

Tom's appointment marks a significant step forward in the company's growth initiative and follows recent expansions in other strategic markets such as Denver, Philadelphia and Dallas – as well as the launch of its first international office in London.

"Tom will play a pivotal role in contributing to the continued success of the business while maintaining and building on core relationships with our clients," says RedRidge Diligence Services' Managing Director, Cory Ryan. "We are delighted to welcome someone with Tom's wealth of experience to serve as the Northeast practice leader as we bolster our presence in the region."

"RedRidge is a proven leader in its field and I look forward to ensuring its continued success," adds Tom. "Having the opportunity to utilize my experience to build on the company's existing reputation for high quality is an excellent opportunity."

Tom earned his Bachelor of Science degree from the State University of New York at Plattsburgh and a Juris Doctorate from Pace University School of Law. He is a licensed CPA and is a member of the AICPA.
